RENAISSANCE MEN

1996

The school should always have as its aim that the young man leave it as a harmonious personality, not as a specialist ... The development of general ability for independent thinking and judgement should always be placed foremost, not the acquisition of special knowledge.

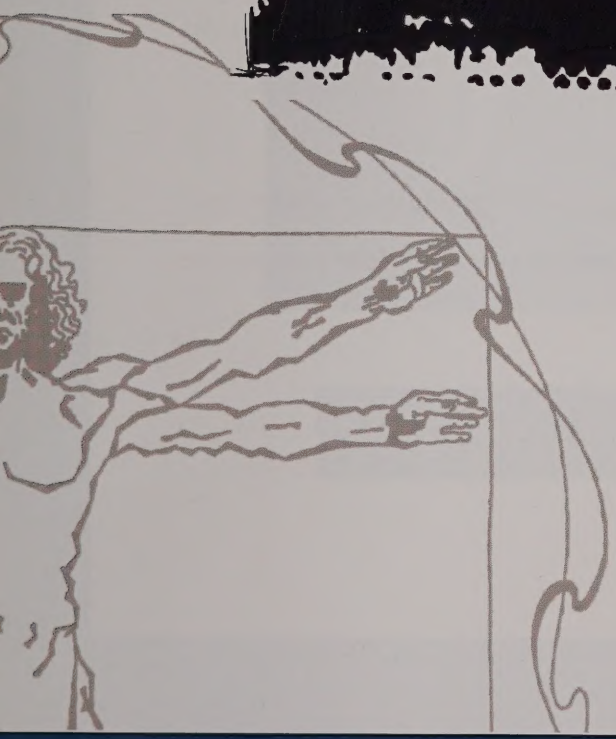
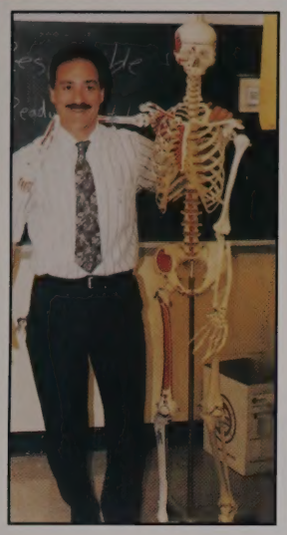
Renaissance Men



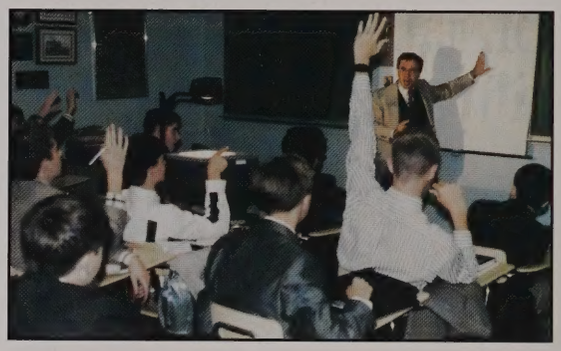
The ideal human being is the Renaissance Man. This idea, derived from the notion of Leon Battista Alberti who said, "A man can do all things if he will," describes a person of limitless capability and vast interests. True Renaissance Men embrace all forms of learning and strive to reach their full potential in all areas of knowledge, in physical development, in social accomplishments, and in the arts.

With substantial resources and a vibrant, multi-talented faculty, St. John's has been nurturing Renaissance Men for over a century. Academically, the St. John's name speaks for itself. St. John's is first and foremost a place that encourages a life-long pursuit of learning. Athletically, few institutions can claim more dedicated and successful student-athletes. Socially, coming from a school of gentlemen, the St. John's student is responsible and respected. And artistically, new doors continue to open musically and in the visual arts, adding more and more ways for the student body to express their creativity. A St. John's education is well-rounded and practical, but is moreover dynamic and eclectic. The mission of St. John's is "to educate the whole man," and the school provides the environment for young men to grow and mature so that upon graduation, St. John's alumni are not just high school graduates, but true Renaissance Men.

Renaissance Men



One essential characteristic of a Renaissance Man is a commitment to life-long scholarship and learning. A dedicated faculty coupled with a dynamic curriculum guide St. John's students on their journey toward becoming ever-learning Renaissance Men. In a school with a strong tradition of academic excellence, there is an emerging new emphasis on a diversified education that will give students of St. John's the ability to adapt in order to succeed in life. Recent years have seen the introduction of new courses such as studio art, Advanced Placement Art History, and Chinese language that are designed to compliment a strong liberal arts base, which provides a foundation for future learning.



A St. John's education seeks to provide young men with an opportunity to reach their own potential through a well-rounded, diversified, and exciting education, always striving to inspire students to the fullest possible realization of their capabilities.

No matter how accomplished the Renaissance Man is academically, he knows that he is not whole until his body and spirit are as sound as his mind. While the tradition of St. John's varsity athletics is renowned, students know it is the lessons learned from sport and its physical benefits that matter most, rather than victories and defeats. With this understanding, students of all ability participate in some form of athletics, from "Phys. Ed. Hoops" to intramural soccer, to the State-Finalist Basketball team. Freshmen and Junior Varsity teams in almost all sports and an extensive intramural program in the Fall and Spring give all Pioneers a chance to develop their athletic gifts to the fullest, while encouraging friendly competition and an environment to meet new friends. And when the varsity games begin, all of St. John's mobilizes in support, sporting their school colors and cheering on their teams to victory after victory. With such a vast and successful athletic tradition, it is little wonder why it is such an honor to don the red and white and be counted as one of the Saint John's Letter Men.

Gentle Men

For many students, the St. John's experience is not defined by the many hours dedicated to the classroom, but rather by the countless opportunities available before 8:30 and after 2:18. Through these activities, St. John's students continue their education beyond the classroom by exploring their passions and strengths. With such a vast array of extra curricular possibilities, almost every student at St. John's finds an interest that he can pursue at school.

In addition to maintaining a sound mind in a sound body, a Renaissance Man must demonstrate a certain level of social achievement. From the tenderness and energy exhibited at proms, to the spirit and unity shown at sporting events, to the grace and power displayed on the stage of school theatrical productions, the St. John's Pioneers prove that their social accomplishments illustrate those of true Gentle Men.

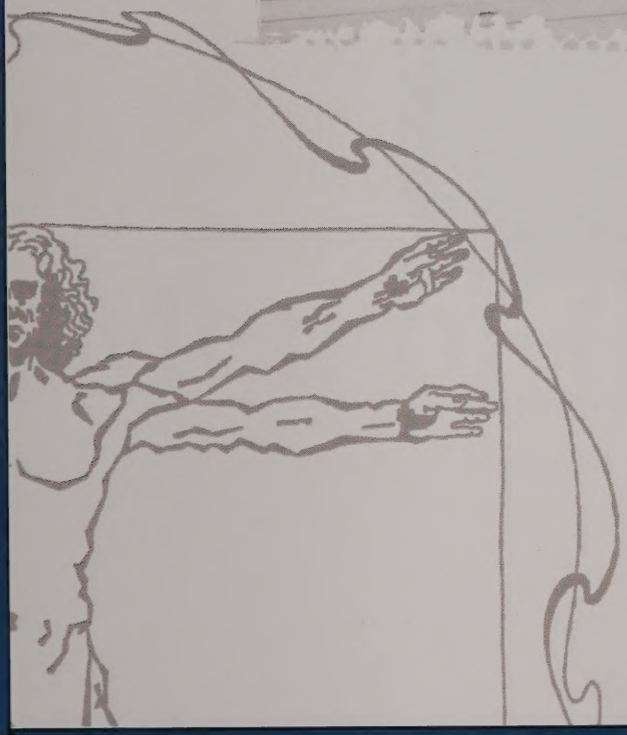
Men of the Arts

The recent expansion and recognition of the arts at St. John's has brought a fresh sense of appreciation for the humanities, fulfilling this idea of the Renaissance Man. The Fine Arts department has been working vigorously to create new programs which encourage students and faculty to express their creative talents. The Manor House appropriately now serves as the forum for the biannual recitals. There, performances by the chorus, the string quartet, and the award-winning jazz ensemble demonstrate the musical achievements that St. John's encourages. The theatre and literary departments at St. John's continue to take precedence in the St. John's community, meriting respect for their extraordinary performances. These achievements, combined with the integration of the arts into the curriculum, display St. John's drive to foster Men of the Arts.

DAVID C. CASSIL



The importance of tradition to the Renaissance Man lies in the need for encouragement and reassurance. Tradition provides a sense of stability and confidence in each pioneering spirit. Here at St. John's, there is a certain mystique which permeates every classroom, activity, and member of the "St. John's Family." This sensation can be felt by every graduate, observed at every liturgy, and heard in every boom of "We are ST. JOHN'S!" The century-old Xaverian tradition serves as the base upon which students build their own set of values. This ideology promotes a strong spirit of camaraderie and presents opportunities of full expression of potential. In preparation for the future, St. John's instills in every graduate a set of values, stressing service, nurturing the whole man, and inspiring life-long learning. As a result of this tradition of excellence found at St. John's, each Pioneer alumnus joins a strong legacy of Renaissance Men.

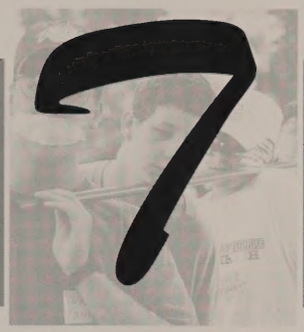
Renaissance Men



The faces of Renaissance Men; they cover the spectrum of age, race, sex, and creed. These are the faces that made the corridors of Saint John's come to life. These are the people who ran the gamut of human pursuit. The faces behind the A's and B's. The faces behind the wins and losses. The faces behind the costumes and quarter notes. The faces who came to Saint John's and gave all they had in pursuit of their own potential, and in doing so helped maximize the potential of others. These are the faces of Renaissance Men.

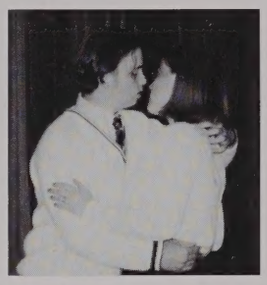
Men of Creation

Though every person aspires to be a Renaissance Man, there is a human need to be different and original--a desire to leave a personal mark upon an earth of so many people. What separates each St. John's student from the other is his individual uniqueness--his own creative spirit. Without a way to express this spirit, the body wallows in the boredom of conformity. Writing a poem, painting a landscape, interpreting a musical composition or dramatic character--these are all pursuits whose undertaking will produce as many varying results as people who attempt them. It is in this search for an individual identity that students become Men of Creation.

Lunchtime
the dining room

On Halloween Weekend at Quinsigamond Community College, the Saint John's Drama Club put on their production of The Dining Room, a comedy/drama. This was the second production of The Dining Room by the school. It was first put on by the Saint John's Drama Club in the fall of 1988.

The play itself is a satire of the lives of several wealthy Protestant families. All thirty scenes take place in a dining room setting, with the table being the main prop. "It's like a tapestry," stated Mr. Patrick Dolan, one of the plays directors along with Mr. Steve Davis, "like a collage of families." Each scene begins with a family entering the set and sitting at the table. As a scene ends, the next family sits at the other end of the table, but the first group onstage can not "see" the other. The play culminates with a party, where all of the families attend.



Thirty actors took part in the production, ten of them female actors. The cast included Rajeev Nath, Brian Treleaven, James McNamera, Fred Gooltz, and Brittany Pehl. Shamus Mahan was the student director.

The Dining Room did not have the complex sets, sounds, and lighting of other productions. The result was a heavier demand on the actor's talents. "Since there was not a lot of scenery, the audience could focus more on the storyline and the acting. As a result, the actors had to work harder on their parts," stated Mr. Dolan. "We put on this particular production to get a lot of actors," he added.

As with many SJ productions, The Dining Room was a success. "We had a good time working on the show. A lot of people came to see the play," Mr. Dolan said. The Dining Room was undoubtly an enjoyable expierence for all who came to see the production.

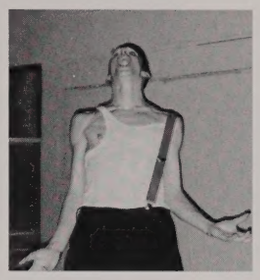
Stella!!!

streetcar named desire

On February 2nd and 3rd, members of the Saint John's Drama Club performed Streetcar Named Desire, a play considered by many to be one of the great American plays, to an enthusiastic crowd at Quinsigamond Community College.

The cast included Fred Gooltz '96, who played the animalistic Stanley Kowalski. Fred brought to the role a powerful interpretation of the sadistic tyrant that made theatre-goers forget the Marlon Brando performance of the late 40's and early 50's.



But the star of the show was Brittany Pehl from Shrewsbury High School, who played the tormented and distraught Blanche Dubois. Brittany's powerful interpretation of Blanche received a thunderous standing ovation.

No production is complete without assistance from the other actors, both major and supporting, who stayed in character throughout the three hour production.

As always, Dan Jacques '97 and his asistant, Johnathan McInerny '97 constructed a set remarkable for both its realism and adaptability. Donations were given by the Borgatti, McInerny, and Davis families toward the contruction of the set.

Finally, this particular production would not have been fully realized and accomplished without the insightful direction of Mr. Deedy, Mr. Davis and Mr. Dolan. His steady hand and willingness to see this powerful drama produced is a credit to his desire to bring all types of theatre alive for the Saint John's community.

Live From...

96 spring spectacular

The 30th annual St. John's Spring Spectacular, appropriately entitled "Live From...", took the audience on a journey throughout the United States to see all aspects of American culture and music. From Nashville to New York, the musical numbers performed captured the depth and diversity of our great nation.

With the knee-slappin' hits of the South, the show roused the cast and audience to boot-scootin' boogy along to the Grand Ole Opry. Country twang flooded the room and carried all those inside on a course up the Mississippi to the back streets and blues bars of Motown; Detroit that is. Chartering this voyage, emcees Dave Foley and Mark Bonczek introduced reminiscent oldies such as "My Guy" and "Sitting on the Dock of the Bay." Rollerblading techno tracks, cool smooth doo-wop numbers, and red hot dance beats helped bring out da funk in prearation for the next stop: Hollywood. The city opened with a romantic ballet sequence from West Side Story followed by the theme song from "The Flintsone's." Topped in tuxes and canes, the male tappers performed to the classic "Puttin' on the Ritz" literally bringing down the house and ending the first act.

The first stop as the journey continued, New Orleans, offered the toe-tappin' "Rockin' Robin" and the bee-boppin' "Swingin' with the Saints" to show the spirit of Mardi Gras. From there it was off to the days of 8-tracks, platform shoes, and disco balls to the Philadelphia-based rave, the American Bandstand. This was truly the place to be. Dust off your poyester jumpsuit and feather headdress 'cause the nifty times continued with the arm-wavin' hits of "YMCA" and "Stayin' Alive." Your parents have a lot of explaining to do...

The revival of "Showboat" presented the perfect opportunity to conclude this fantastic voyage in New York. To celebrate this 30th bash, the Radio City Rockettes were flown in to give their final kick off (at least until next year anyway).

The melodious sounds of the chorus were sculpted and fine-tuned by the talented and patient Mr. Richard Monroe and Mr. Michael Gondek. Just as artistically talented and overly patient were the moderators of Stage Crew: Mr. Paul "It's Not Pink" Jourcin, Br. Thomas "Go Home!!!" Klar, and Mrs. Carol "Gold Strip Extraordinaire" Fredette. The dancers owed all of their grace and skill to the choreographer Mrs. Sheila Fucci and assistant choreographer Mrs. Eleanor Bouvier, who spent all of their spare moments scouring for three-piece polyester suits and bell bottom jeans. Both the chorus and the dancers owe thanks to Mr. Stephen Gregory who lived in the piano for the three months that the cast rehearsed. And of course it all wouldn't have been possible if it wasn't for the esteemed director, producer, and creator, Br. Stephen Comeau, who was both the brains and the guiding hand of this wonderful production called, "Live From..."

Performance

musical ensembles

The 1995-96 academic year was filled with musical experiences that showed great promise for the arts at Saint John's High School. While many of these events have happened in past years, their continued success and growth were a bright sign for the future.

The second annual Fall Faculty and Recital was held on Friday, October 13, 1995, in the Manor House. The hour-long program featured solo and small ensemble performances as well as the first formal "concert" appearance by the Saint John's Chorus. The Spring Recital, which took place February 15, included selections by the new String Quartet, directed by Mr. Alan Vaudreil, familiar songs from *Camelot, b*y senior David Foley, and many other well-performed solo and ensemble offerings.

The Jazz Ensemble continued to rehearse weekly under the direction of Mr. Alan Vaudreil. These dedicated musicians met Tuesday evenings in good ole room 105 for a three-hour rehearsal. Unlike past years, the group is no longer "hidden away" in the Manor House basement among the paint cans and drain pipes. The Ensemble completed its spring seasonal with the annual Spring Concert on Wednesday, April 10, where .

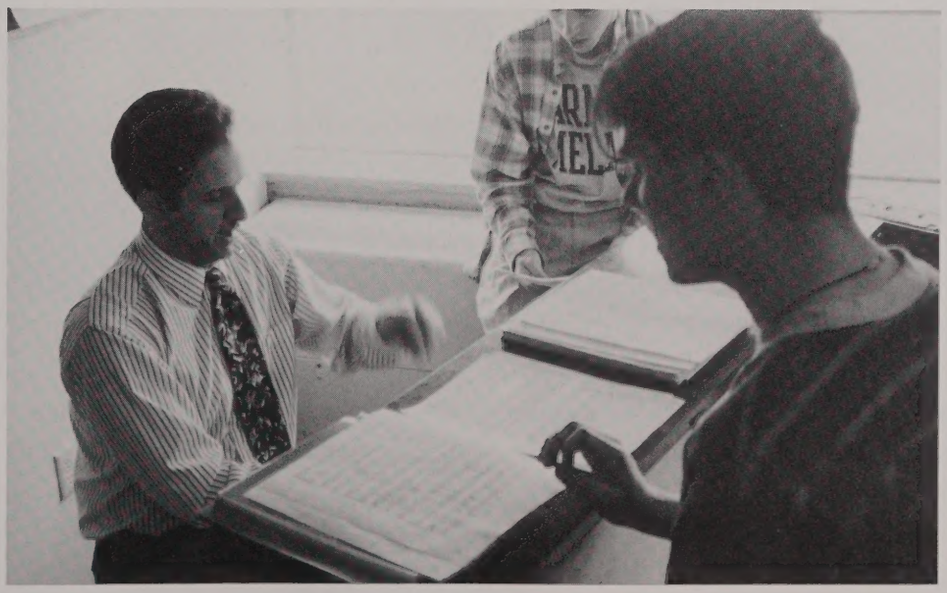
Both the Jazz Ensemble and Chorus joined forces with the musical performers from Notre Dame Academy to present a Christmas Concert on December 13, 1995. This year's concert was held at Alden Hall on the campus of WPI, providing a more comfortable seating and a better setting. While the concert was lengthy, it was also high on talent, and the large audience heard numerous treatments of familiar carols and holiday songs.

All of the musical events are a testament to the talent and dedication of our student performers. They are willing to give freely of their time and talent. This was clearly seen when students joined Mr. Stephen Gregory and Mr. Richard Monroe to perform for the guests at Bishop Reilly's Thanksgiving Day Dinner as well as for the incoming freshman during information day in early January. Later that year, John Sorrenti '98, Luke Ascoli '98, and David Foley '96, were recognized for their excellence by Mass. Music Educators, and were invited to perform in this year's Central District Concert.

Saint John's continues to broaden its commitment to the arts, and music is now included in the school curriculum as an upper-level elective course. Music Theory and Music Appreciation have been offered this year and have been receiving enthusiastic responses from the student body.

--Mr. Richard Monroe

Richard Monroe signals the chorus to begin the fourth part of "Life Giving Bread."



Chorus members spent months practicing parts to achieve the perfect harmonious balance required of them.

Poetic Potential

worcester young writer's conference

On the rainy weekend of November 11-12, almost one hundred students huddled together in the warmth of the Saint John's Manor House for the sixth annual Young Writers' Conference. Supported by the tireless efforts of Mr. David Vilandre and operated by student directors, juniors Jon Cahill and Gordon Bedford and sophomore Tom Keegan, the conference was yet again a tremendous success. This year's mentors included Suzanne Berne, Jim Beschta, Tim Connolly, Terry Farish, John Hodgen, Susan Roney-O'Brien, Jack O'Connell, Jo Pitkin, Donna Reck, and Maxine Rodberg. This year's keynote speaker was Ms. Elinor Lipman, author of Into Love and Out Again, Then She Found Me, and The Way Men Act. Her works are well-known for their intimacy and humorous sarcasm.

Attendees came from Saint John's High School, Dorhety Memorial High School, Wachusett Regional High School, Bancroft School, and many others. Early in the morning of November 11, students arrived at the Manor House and enjoyed a breakfast of coffee, juice, and donuts. An introductory talk was given to the students by Anna Risol, a columnist and reporter for the Montachusett Telegram and Gazette. Anna's welcome was follwed by mentor readings of their own works.

After two days of discussion, creation, and revision, the participants gathered to eat an equisite dinner. In addition, attendees got to listen to the works of some of their fellow writers. Ms. Lipman concluded the weekend by speaking of her history and experiences as a writer. She was very informative in answering inquisitive participants' questions whose topics ranged from publishing to literary style.

This solid structure was the foundation of the Conference. The quiet and welcoming atmosphere of the Saint John's Manor House provided a pleasant environment for explosive literary creation. Lunch on Saturday and dinner on Sunday was catered by the Saint John's kitchen staff and served by members of the Saint John's student body. Under the leadership of Mr. Michael Lahey and Mr. John Ermilio, the staff tended to the essential duties of the Conference very smoothly.

Participants approached the Conference with a positive attitude and gained a great deal from it. Not only were their writing skills enhanced, the attendees found new friends with whom they could discuss and share their ideas. The success of this, the sixth Conference, was a clear display of the strong leadership of Mr. David Vilandre, Mr. Michael Lahey, and Mr. John Ermilio, and their student director counterparts, as well as the dedication of several SJ students.

Also held this year was Kidswrite '96 on March 30. Approximately one hundred elementary school students were in attendance to develop their writing talents and have fun at the same time. Run by the same team of individuals as the Writers' Conference, it too was a huge success.

For the Dreamers

by Rajeev Nath '96

For the Dreamers, It can happen
As time runs out
Anything is possible for those who dare to dream
Ask her to your prom; you need a date
Maybe she'll come with you
Dare to dream; it won't rain on your parade
The eternal parade of our thoughts
Hopes, dreams, prayers, aspirations
Is invincible to any detrimental
Negativeveincorrectwrongway pessimist
They say opportunity only knocks once
I believe theone that dreams doesn't
Wait for the chance to come to him
He goes out to the door of opportunity;
And knocks loud as hell
And says that nobody can stop him
From achieving his destiny
For the Dreamers
It can happen; and for us; It Will

Running Home

By Toby Abraham '97

In damp dreams I sat outside
The drizzle was my space
- I lived a life of magic and contentment -
All I wanted was mine
When the rains came I found the trees
- There I was protected and wide-eyed -
Staring upward I was cooled by their tears
But I never cried with them
I thought of wonders, and with awe
They became me and I them
Evasive paradise, beauty unparalleled
A calmness in the wet air
Clean and pure, innocent
- Baptized in the water
There I was by myself
Never lonely - always with my thoughts
I was silent, I spoke volumes
This place was my own creation
And the most soothing peace - no one else knew

Il attrape l'essence de la vie.
Et les reves qui circulent autour des sujets.
Ils y ajoutent de la couleur
Ils le colorent
Ils le teignet
Ils l'imagent
Et alors l'esprit peut voir
La profondeur, l'emotion de l'image.

Il attrape l'essence de la scene.
Et les images que les sujets
sousentendent,
Ils montent des cendres noirs.
S'il regarde longtemps un feu
Il enregistre une fleur
Et les etincelles font les rues blanches
Dans un monde noir.

S'il regarde le soleil
Il enregistre la joue d'une Geisha
Pure mais erotique.
Et s'il me regarde
Il brule
Parce que mon essence
C'est toute de la lumiere de l'univer

By Stephen Hodson '97

...and in the wink of the eye, he was gone.

oh, where have all the good heroes flown to?
your voice soothed so many in reach of pain, but now there is nothing left of you except a mechanical voice scraped from the drain.
where have all the inside outsiders gone?
no one is left to save the world and its rest.
Spoke not in riddle, but in truth,
saving not the worst, sharing but the best.
Snubbed out from beneath you own wings,
peace and guns never made love.
steal your breath and learn to sing
again of, again of, again of love.
In my tears, in her smile,
across the universe, in your life,
mile after mile i try to understand
if you died in agony for strife.
Does it make a difference in the end?
Your final road was ours also,
and with it, guidance abandoned us as friend,
And abandoned me as false hope.
Where the seagulls roamed and the tugboats pulled,
the ocean swallowed what it created,
ending the road so wanted by others,
but so fatally ill fated.
Where have all the real heroes roamed to,
leaving this world with unstable ones.
Decked in dove feathers,
boned in the skeleton of an ivory gun.
I ask, where have you gone, mr john,
car rides in the country, so little to grasp,
i understood the message
without the lock of age to unclasp.
Songs for the newly dead and newly born,
the newly wed and the newly scorn,
The daily news and beatle bailey's blues,
beatle bailey is crying ink on his paper shoes.
On me own now, on me own to find meself the palace I call home inside a charicature of your presence
oh I cry for tears of innocence.
where, in god's name where, do you hide?
try not too hard, for thee I will find.

Return To Foss Res.

The flowers that grow in the field where we sat
-shed tears in there dew.
This same spot where sandals kicked-off,
our shirts and shorts hung on sticks
while we swam - is bare.

With a heavy heart I venture to the shore to see if the water's changed as well.
And sigh as I find each ripple and line
-on the shore brings back ocean waves of moonlit memories.

men at work in trees

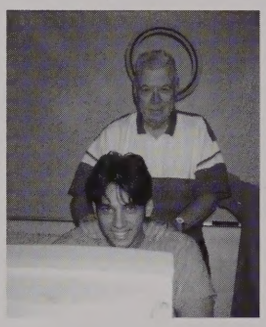
After thousands of hours of work stuck in 105 and the computer room, the editors of this book decided we deserved a little self-aggrandizement besides being the proud creators of Renaissance Men, the Renaissance Men preview book, and Good Afternoon, the graduate edition. But more importantly we wanted a place to personally thank the people who have meant so much to us during our time at SJ.

This Yearbook you hold has the notorious distinction of being the most behind-yearbook in the Northeast for 1996. In the end, we were 223 days behind our publishing calendar. As editors, we are very proud of that record; our motto was, after all, "deadlines are made to be broken..." All of the material in this book was written, made, or borrowed exclusively by many creative SJ students and we are very proud of that, too.

We encourage all of you to read it—it's funny, and there are some neat things here and there that are rather entertaining. And we'd feel like such life-less idiots if no one read this yearbook after wasting half our summer. As a staff, we did our best to include as many seniors as possible, but we can only work with what we've got, so we're sorry to those left out. Otherwise, congratulations to all the members of the class of 96; we were a great class—it was a fun four years.

Finally, we'd like it known that this book is unofficially dedicated to two people, who have both been very close to the hearts of our class. First to the late Brian Johnson, our friend. It is our wish that he never be forgotten for the lessons his innocent death taught us. Secondly to Brother Jim Connolly, our campus minister who helped us get through Brian's death and so many other trials and tribulations. SJ will never be the same...

Now our thank yous: To our staff: Tobin Abraham, Jason Adams, Matt Dobson, Andy Frey, Todd Eves, Brian Kavanagh, Tom Keegan, Tim O'Coin, and Matt Zumwalt. Why there wasn't mutiny over their control-freak editors we'll never know. To Dave and Sandy Roth of Walsworth Publishing Company, sorry about never meeting a deadline. To our photographers: Mr. Raul Laborde—our divider page genius, Mrs. Meg Curran, our friend Marc Forchielli '96, and of course Bro. John Doyle who always responded to our constant cries for pictures. To Dave, Tori, and the Aerobie, Village and Shrewsbury Pizza, White Hen, and Mr. Carl Wilson. To the computer room staff whose patience we were so grateful for. To Mrs. Jean Abdella and Mrs. Liz Kavanagh for their love and pictures. And most importantly, to our adviser Mr. Patrick Gillis. Thank you for being an adviser in the true sense of the word—you would suggest but never force. This book is as good as it is because of your guiding hand, your patience in letting us switch to computer design, and your pizza money. We won't forget that.



So off we go to continue our quest to become true renaissance men, but we'd lastly like to thank the school we love for helping us become the people we are today, and when we're rich and famous we will be contributing lots of cash for a yearbook room to express our gratitude. Peace.

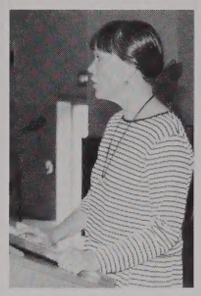
Men at Work

Consistent with their method of approaching every facet of life, St. John's students go about their extracurricular activities with passion. An activity is another way to enhance a mind, to explore an interest not available during the normal school day. Activities are the real-life application of the ideas garnered from the academic world. Test a theory from government class in the Model United Nations. Splice the DNA discussed in Biology through the Science Mentor Program. Get in touch with the theological inner child and create a yearbook. Enter at your own risk: these are Men at Work.

Br. Jim Departs

c a m p u s m i n i s t r y

In his work, About Ministries: Sharing Our Gift, James Dunning says: "Ministry means: discovering that we have something to spend and spending it; discovering our talents and gifts and offering them to people and to our world in service and caring; discovering that as human persons we are unique, with immense possibilities for self-giving love for our brothers and sisters, discovering as Christians that we have been gifted by God, called to offer those gifts to others; recognizing that what we have been doing in our lives to love and care for others in response to their needs is, in fact, Christian Ministry."



For seven years Br. Jim Connolly has led the St. John's Campus Ministry program, and has run it very successfully. During his time here Br. Jim oversaw everything from retreats and morning prayer to the Christian Leadership Institute and the masses. However, with the end of the 95-96 school year he came to the decision to move on. Br. Jim's Campus Ministry program has brought the students at St. John's closer together and has also brought them in touch with their own spiritual lives. The retreats Br. Jim worked hard on gave the freshmen a chance to adjust to their new environment and helped upperclassmen to become closer to their friends and other classmates. Br. Jim trained a team of peer ministers to assist on the retreats.

Campus Ministry also runs such programs as the Non-Violence Workshop for the class and S.A.C. officers and organizes an annual trip to Orangeburg, South Carolina. This year, juniors Dan Marino and Jay Santos made the trip to the rural community during their February break.

Br. Jim's Campus Ministry isn't just part of St. John's, but it is a factor that unites us all, and Br. Jim's absence will be sorely felt. -- Pat Driscoll '98

character, leadership, service

The above headline from the National Honor Society Induction Pledge, captures the theme of the Brother Campion Chapter for the 1995-1996 academic year. The society continued its support of St. John's Parish on Temple Street in Worcester with food, clothing and monetary donations. At the Thanksgiving liturgy, Father Joe Coonan, Pastor of St. John's, delivered a very moving sermon, expressing the needs of his community. But even more, he wanted to convey the deep thanks and love his parish has for the Saint John's High School family.

In serving the needs of its own, NHS members provided needed assistance on campus with the coat check service at school dances, the tutorial program, the SRA reading program and many other efforts. As always, a popular service activity was the Big Dipper Ice Cream Festival for the Worcester Children's Friends Society held in June. Throughout the year new opportunities for service emerged for the busy NHS chapter.

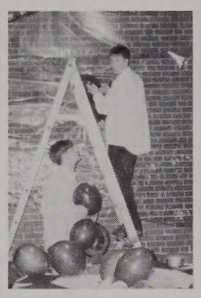
student activities council SAC

The 1995-1996 Student Activities Council officers carried on the principles and activities exercised by past councils. These duties included a SAC sponsored Blood Drive where both students and faculty came to donate much needed blood to the American Red Cross. Members of SAC also planned the usual array of dances, including one innovative rave dance. The rave featured a contest to reward the best retro-duds dance-goers could unearth from their parents' closets. SAC also sponsored the ever-popular Homecoming festivities and aided at the multiple school liturgies held throughout the year.



The lucky seven this year included President Dan Roughan, V.P. Marc Forchielli, Treasurer Tim Jarry, Activities Coordinator Dave Brady, Parliamentarian Mario Theodorou, Secretary Bill Graham, and Publicity Coordinaror Chris Polechronis.

Every April, the newly elected SAC officers are inagurated at a school liturgy. Next year's happy pack includes President Bill Marino, V.P. Kevin Fischer, Treasurer Pat Marr, Activities Coordinator Devon Cooney, Parliamentarian Kellen Reed, Secretary Frank Marino, and Publicity Director Tim Nguyen. With the guiding hand of the administration, lots of cash, and maybe a little dumb luck, next year's SAC officers may just improve upon the workings of the Student Activities Council. --Tim O'Coin '98

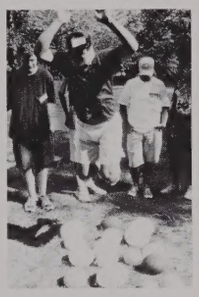
christian leadership institute

On August 16-18, 78 seniors and 13 faculty members attended the annual Saint John's Christian Leadership Institute at the Oakhurst Conference Center in Whitinsville, MA. The program's purpose is to aid upcoming seniors spiritually, socially, and academically in the roles of leadership. Activities included problem solving scenarios, obstacle courses, and reflection. "The activities were such that students could learn about themselves and others by doing the activity but more importantly, having the time to stop and reflect on the activity and how they as a group went about approaching the activity and solving the problem at hand," stated Br. Jim Connolly C.F.X., the director of the program. Several workshops were available for students to participate in.



The students who attended found the program to be enlightening. "I think I got a lot out of it," states Mark Holland '96. "We learned to work together as a group. We got to see how others felt, they opened up and we got to hear what their feelings were."

Br, Connolly also shares the students sentiment. "I think it helped the senior class come together before they began their senior year to think about their hopes for graduate year. This class is special to me because I've been through a lot with them and they've been through a lot together with the loss of classmates; events that made them grow up fast," Br. Conolly said.

The Christian Leadership institute has been and will continue to be a valuable experience for incoming seniors.

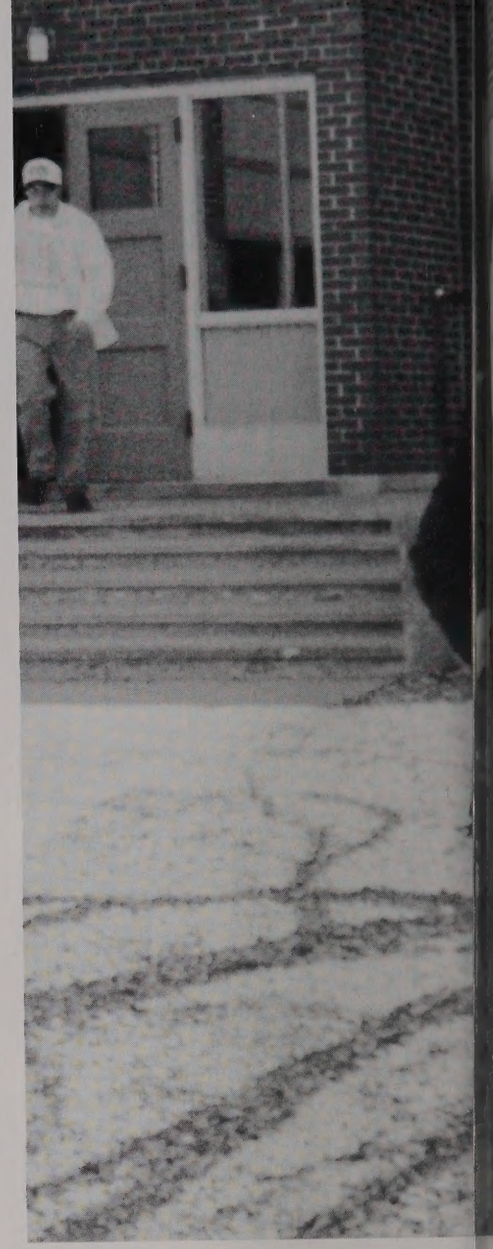
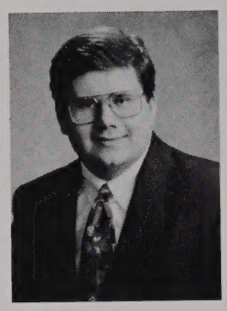
mass. Rebuttal debate champs



Resolution: That the United States government should substantially change its foreign policy towards the People's Republic of China. Saint John's debaters competed against local, regional, and national competition consisting of debators of varsity, junior varsity, and novice level during the 1995-1996 school year. On all levels the debaters won individual speaker awards and team trophies.



Among the highlights early in the year were senior Jim Couture's top speaker trophy performance at the Manchester-by-the-Sea invitational and junior Greg Coppenrath's quarterfinal and semifinal team trophy achievements at Monticello, NY and Manchester. On the novice and junior varsity level, freshman Michael Chalifoux and Young Lee won the first tournament they entered at the Lexington novice Invitational. At the same tournament sophmore Abhishek Chatterjee won the top junior varsity speaker award; the team brought home a total of five trophies.

Year ending triumphs occurred at Harvard National Invitational and in the state tournament at Natick. Seniors Jim Couture and Chris Creed won a double octofinal team trophy in a field of 160 varsity teams from all over the country. In the state tournament novices Michael Chalifoux and Stephen Rugg on the affirmative combined with Peter Bak and Tin Ngyuen on the negative to give Saint John's its second straight novice state championship title. On the J.V. level, Matt Letourneau and Matt Sparrow took third place and the varsity won five of their final eight debates.

Junior Bryan Jalbert and freshmen Tim Dodd, Neil Khaund, Brandon Lachner, Young Lee, Raquib Mazumber and the debaters already mentioned make the 1996-1997 season very promising for Saint John's.

This year, the Academic Decathlon team placed seventh out of over seventy schools. The team, comprised of freshmen through seniors, worked diligently from September until March twice a week in preparation for the three annual meets. Each of the three meets began early on a Saturday morning with a trip to McDonald's, and ended at night with a loud bus ride back to St. John's. The members were expected to be skilled in ten different subjects at the meets, and sometimes they were. The subjects were Economics, Social Sciences, Science, Fine Arts, and Literature, Math, Essay, Speech, Interview, and Super Quiz. This year's focus was International Cooperation, and the fiftieth anniversary of the United Nations was the perfect venue. Through a Jeopardy-like forum the students were tested on their knowledge of the subject. Each meeting was supplied with food, jokes, and of course information. Although the coaches, Mrs. Carol Fredette and Mrs. Elizabeth Kavanagh, were pleased with the seventh place finish, they were even happier with the individual achievements. With the end of this year's Academic Decathlon, everyone wondered what they were going to do for snacks, so to ease everyone's fears, and to prepare for next year, they ended the year with a cookout.

Model UN

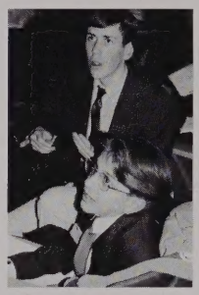
we've got the whole world in our hands

This was another great year for Saint John's Model United Nations. It looked bleak considering the number of Seniors who had left and the amount of experience and wisdom they took with them, but just like last year, a huge crop of Freshmen joined and more than filled the ranks in number. Experience had to be found in the new Juniors and Seniors, and the very promising Sophomore delegates.

The year once again started off with our own conference held right at SJ. The attendance was down quite a bit due to the conference being scheduled the same day as the SAT's , but the delegates who did attend seemed to enjoy themselves in the committees including the Conference on Human Rights.

The next activity for SJMUN was the Harvard Conference, which is notoriously SJ's weaker national conference. Because of all the delegates who wished to attend the conference including an unprecedented number of frosh, SJMUN was forced to get two countries. This turned out to be a blessing in disguise because it made sure that almost no one was in a committee by himself. Unfortunately, a mix-up on the part of Harvard forced the club to change one of their countries to Macedonia, and effectively laid to waste months of study and preparation. This certainly didn't help as SJ only picked up three awards, all by underclassmen: Matthew Walsh '98 and Mike Cecil '99 with honorable mentions each in Disarmament and International Security Committee, and Brian Kavanagh '98 with a best delegate in the World Health Organization.

A trip to the windy city of Chicago was next, and the large SJ delegation was busily preparing as France for what is an SJ man's paradise, a far away city without parents and eighteen hundred of the coolest, smartest, not to mention the most beautiful people in all of America and beyond. SJ Delegates were well prepared to take the conference by storm and of course make a few "friends" in the process.



The delegates hard work was well worth the effort. Chris Belisle '96 and Nate O'Coin '96 were named outstanding delegates in the prestigious Security Council, for which they awakened at 2:00 a.m. for an emergency meeting and crisis session. Rajeev Nath '96 and Kevin Hartzell '98 won best delegates in the World Health Organization, as did Matt Walsh '98 and Brian Kavanagh '98 in the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, Hitoshi Yamaguchi '98 and Mike Cecil '99 in Legal Committee, and finally an unlikely pair surprised everyone when Jon Zimmer '98 and Brandon Arsenault '99 took a best delegate in World Bank. It was an experience never to be forgotten.

The SJMUN will only graduate three seniors this year: Chris Belisle, Nate "Boutros" O'Coin, and finally Rajeev Nath, who will be forever remembered for his famous equation for recruiting new members, SJ GUYS + UNIV GIRLS

A special thanks to the Moderators- Mr. Novick, Mr. Laborde, and Mr. Gondek. These men make incredible sacrifices to make SJMUN the best in the country. Mr. Gondek said it best when he closed Chicago with the last of his many pieces of wisdom: "Blessed are the Saint John's delegates, for they shall make the prophet proud."

Math Team

have Ti-82, will travel

Continuing their long tradition of victory, the 1996 Varsity Math Team repeated as WOCOMAL (Worcester County Math League) Champions for the sixth straight year in a row. This is the eleventh year out of the last thirteen that the Varsity Math Team has finished first. St. John's also had eight of its individual members come in the top 30 league high scorers. Senior Veeral Shah came in second with a score of 70 out of a possible 72 points. Other serior high scorers included Sanjay Patel in 12th place and Michael Sorrenti in 28th place. Junior high scorers were Anthony Meconiates in 8th place, Toby Abraham in 9th place, and Ian Mangion in 15th place. Also coming in in the top 30 were sophomore Luke Archibald in 19th place and freshman Peter Blouin also in 19th place. St. John's sent members of the Varsity Math Team to the State and New England Math Meets. The six member team consisted of seniors Veeral Shah and Sanjay Patel, juniors Toby Abraham, Anthony Meconiates, and Phil Shea, and sophomore Luke Archibald. The State Team came in fifth place.

St. John's also hosted many individual competitions such as AHSME, NEML, and the Massachusetts Olympiad. St. John's had two students, Veeral Shah and Anthony Meconiates, score high enough to reach the second level of the Olympiad. Three SJ students, Veeral Shah, Anthony Meconiates, and Michael Sorrenti, qualified through the American High School Mathematics Examination (AHSME) to take the AIME test. St. John's was also represented in the Western Massachusetts All Star Team by Veeral Shah and Anthony Meconiates. This team traveled to Penn State over the weekend of May 31 to June 2 to compete in a national math meet.

The freshman team, coached by Mr. Taylor, finished in second place in the freshman division. The team was led by Brendan McGuilicutty who came in third place in the division and Peter Blouin who was also a high scorer for the team.

The Math Team looks forward to winning the WOCOMAL championship again next year, making it seven in a row.

Computer Club

us too!

This year's A.C.S.L. American Compuer Science League) programming/computer club was led by senior co-captain Tim Canfield and junior co-captain Matt Dobson.

The team finished second out of 46 schools nationally and first in the state of Massachusetts in the Intermediate-3 Division. Individual and team scores are calculated from the results of four separate tests during the year based on various computer topics. Each test combines a five point objective section with a five point programming project which is due within 72 hours after the administering of the objective exam. The top three scores for the team are then submitted to the Intermediate-3 Division and teams are ranked accordingly.

This year's first place scorer for the St. John's Team was junior Matt Dobson. He scored perfect 10's on each exam. Finishing in a close secondwere senior Tim Canfield (37/40) and freshman Edward Behn (37/40). Kris Daly, Jim Gajnak, Liam O'Brien, and Andre Kozaczka also supported the team with 8's and 9's as "solid" individual scores.

As a final activity, a three member team traveled to Stonehill College to compete in their annual computer competition. Led by senior Tim Canfield, and accompanied by juniors Matt Dobson and Kris Daly, the St. John's team finished third out of ten teams. Considering this year's third place finish and last year's second place finish, St. John's has consistently poised itself as a talented group of programmers. Undoubtedly, the A.C.S.L. team is "brewing" its hopeful first place team for next year's competition.

A body in constant intellectual pursuit becomes restless; there is certain need for physical activity innate to the human race. And while the commitment to athletics may vary -- just as in all other facets in the life of Renaissance Men -- it cannot be ignored. Like art, athletics calm the soul, and allow the mind to breathe deeply and exhale all the staleness that comes from excess attention to one area of life. Whether it be by stroking for the varsity crew, or competing in the senior volleyvball tournament, Men of Action know the benefits of athletics and enthusiastically participate.

Douze, Doce, Twelve

cross country '96

In any language, make it twelve for the 1995 Cross Country team; the twelfth year for winning the District Championships, that is.

The team started the season off with a bang after a victory over St. Peter-Marian, and another victory over B.C.High by a margin of one point. The B.C. High meet and the meet against Wachusett were the two dual meets that meant the most to the team. Wachusett was the only team to knock off the Pioneers the previous year, so the '95 victory was sweet revenge. The team went on to go undefeated in the regular season, after victories over St. Bernard's, Marlboro, Holy Name, Doherty, South, Burncoat and Shrewsbury.

They carried the momentum from the win over Wachusett to place third at the Bay State Invitational at Franklin Park in Boston. They were the highest placed team out of all teams that they would be facing in the District Meet later in the season. Three Saturdays later, the team won the Wachusett Invitational. This victory again stressed that the team planned on making the record streak stay alive. The C.M.C. Championship was the last big meet before the Districts. Here, SJXC kept the winning spirit going with a shut-out over the re of the conference.

On Saturday November 11th the tea was faced with an incredible challenge, b the SJ harriers responded. Co Captai Sean Murphy and Mike Parker, along wi seniors Tom Gorsuch, Matt Anderson, a juniors Andrew Buckley, Andrew Hicks and Michael Dolan brought home the 12th straight District Title with a score th was two points greater than that Wachusett.

The victory once again secured S spot as one of the top High School tea mankind has ever known. And under t tutelage of Coach Raul Laborde, Broth Tom Pearson, and Mark Perrone, the tea looks towards next year in pursuit of luc number 13.

Kickin' it

soccer

"It's too bad no one will know how good this team actually was," said coach Brian Foley after the soccer team's District Final loss to arch-rival Wachusett. However, the abrupt and unfortunate end to the 1995 soccer season in the pouring rain and driving wind should not overshadow a noteworthy year by SJ's footballers.

Led by co-captains Thomas Bowles, Michael Quirk, and Matthew Schold, the team went undefeated in their first 17 games, only to lose the season finale to Framingham 1-0. The senior-laden team showed their experience early by beating the likes of nationally ranked St. John's Prep twice, shellacking B.C. High 3-0, and outlasting Wachusett 3-2 in a regular season less-than-friendly. After dominating nationally ranked New Bedford, although only coming out of the match with a 0-0 tie, the Pioneers cracked the New England top-ten list and set their sights on loftier heights behind an impenatrable defense led by Joe Benoit, James White, and Matt Rossini.

Sporting a pair of exceptional goalies, Josh Vernon and Mike Mercer, who allowed only 11 goals during the 21 game season, the team entered District competition and easily disposed of Tantasqua Regional and Algonquin Regional. The seniors, Jeremy Adams, Matt Carlsen, Marc Drappi, Jon Emmerton, Michael Kavanagh, Tony Lauring, and their aforementioned classmates had already attended the State Semi-Finals three times. But after seeing several balls careem off goal posts, inches away from scoring, and battling wind, rain, and a determined Wachusett team that had not beaten St. John's in over four years, 1995 St. John's Soccer could not gain their fourth title in a row. They ended their season on the short end of a 1-0 fight. Quirk (8 goals; 11 assists), Schold (5; 8), and Emmerton (7; 5) were the top producing graduates, but leading scorer, Junior Phoethip Ketnouvong (13;13) looks to work his magic next year and reclaim SJ Soccer's seat as one of the top programs in the state.

A Step Forward

saint john's football

The SJ Football Team took a step towards regaining their dominance in the Central Massachusetts Conference with a promising 95-96 campaign. The Pioneers, resplendent with youth, finished with a 3-7 record, which included wins over Catholic Memorial, Doherty, and Holy Name. With only three graduating starters, the team looks poised for a winning season next year.

This year's Co-Captains, seniors Tim Moran and Brian Duhamel had standout seasons on both sides of the ball, both of them making the All-Conference Team. Next year the team will be led by Co-Captains Simon 'Gidge' Harootian and Mike Manning, the team's top running back this year. But the team will seek leadership in many of its players. "There's a large group of returning lettermen who will provide leadership next year," says Head Coach Tony Wood. "Guys like Nolan Burke and Dan Brunel should have great senior seasons."

Among the best of the team's your players were sophomores Chris Polechron and Paul Cassasanta. Simply Marvelous

saint john's fall crew

This year's SJ Crew Team, by all standards had a marvelous fall season. Finishing among the top teams in every race, the Pioneer rowers certainly made their presence felt throughout the rowing community. When asked if his hopes for this fall were fufilled, Coach John Ermilio responded with a resounding "Absolutely! We set a goal to win a medal in every race and that's what we did; a gold in the Textile Regatta, a silver in the head of the Connecticut, and a bronze in the Head of the Charles."

The season's first race, the Textile Regatta proved to be only a slight challenge for the team. Following this race were the Head of the Connecticut and Head of the Charles races. Facing stronger competition at the Connecticut, the team still brought home an impressive second place finish. The Charles, a race which draws competition from around the world, proved to be the real test for the Pioneers. The first boat again medaled, receiving a bronze for their outstanding third place finish, leaving several other schools to only stand and admire the powerful Pioneers. Key to th years success was the performance Captain Jim Donahue, Matthew Beato Michael DiPierro, Matthew Lizotte, Jo O'Toole, Todd Mulligan, Mike Fiske, I Peebles, Brian Conte, and Jon Cahill.

Also deserving credit are th year's Novice and J.V. boats, whose su cesses were a clear display of the tea strength as a whole. To put it in the wor of Coach Ermilio, "The boys worked e tremely hard, from the Novice rowers a the way up to Varsity..."

Stormy Weather

s j indoor track

1995 began with monumental—and haps unreasonable—expectations for indoor track team. Looking over the ter, the team was deeper than ever; there s the usual stock of distance runners, there was also a talented group of speed l weightmen. And after the first meet ne Brandeis Invitational, where Michael vanagh took first in the mile right ahead Sean Murphy, Marc Drappi took sec- l in the 1000, and Todd Eves set a phomore record in the 500 meters, talk a State Title almost seemed justified. e week later, Johnny O'Mara began his lliant season by taking first place in the nile at the Reggie Lewis Invitational ick Meet. A third place finish at the own University Championship Distance dley which attracts the 12 top DMR ms from the East further bolstered the nfidence of Coach Donohue. But then rmy weather began to strike every mem- of the team in the form of injury and ess, and the 1996 half of the season became a veritable roller coaster ride.

Plowing their way through ice and snow, the runners strained to train consistently, while the jumpers and throwers were forced indoors early in the winter. Though the team was able to easily win their first few meets, soon the lack of regularity in training caught up to them. A surprising Leominster team handed SJ an unexpected defeat, and a week later eventual State Champion Brockton disposed of the indoor team. Finally, SJ lost its first District Title in years on a day of sickness and disappointment for many of the team members.

Still, the team found themselves as the sixth ranked team in the state when the State Meets rolled around, and in the final four meets, the low points of the winter were quickly forgotten. The 2-mile relay team of Sean Murphy, captain Marc Drappi, Tom Gorsuch, and Matt Anderson placed in the State Class meet, while Sean Murphy took an individual 6th at the same meet in the mile. Ahead of Murphy was captain Michael Kavanagh, who took second in Class-A, 6th in the State, and 5th in New England in a time of 4:26.7 for one mile. But Johnny O'Mara led the distance squad, and was crowned State Champion in the 2-mile in Class-A and All Class meets. Johnny finished up his domination with a 10th place finish at the High School Nationals by clocking a 9:31.1 for the two mile, and placed himself among SJ's top distance runners in the school's history.

In addition, hurdler and captain Tim Moran, sprinter Anthony Small, and high jumpers Peter Keenan and Joe Foley impressed at the District Level, capping off a bizarre season of victories and less-than-victories that left much of the school a little puzzled about indoor track and field.

With a convincing win over itchburg High, St. John's won it's second raight District Title. The team went on defeat Western Mass Champion Springfield Commerce in the State Semi-Final to earn the right to meet South Boston High in the state finals at the Centrum. Although the game ultimately went to e Southies, St. John's played well, capping another outstanding season behind e leadership of Marcus Teixeira, Jon aylor, and John Brennan. What made this ear's success even more impressive was the team's overcoming the loss of several key seniors from last year's squad.

"We don't believe in rebuilding," coach Bob Foley said. "Our capatains bring us right back to where we were." The team was top-heavy with seniors--eight in all. The contributions in leadership all eight made were enormous. The team had a fluid 11-man rotation and every man saw generous playting time. Marcus Teixera led the way on both sides of the ball, while Jon Taylor ran the point, and John Brennan dominated the middle. John Demember took care of the opposing team's big man and was a ferocious rebounder. Chris Oroszko did a little bit of everything, including comic relief.

As is characteristic of a Saint John's basketball team, this year's team was balanced offensively and defensively. With enough big men in the middle and a handful of quick guards, the team felt equally at home going inside or shooting threes. Evidence of this is the eleven players averaging over 10 points a game, one of whom was Jason Grochawalski, who provided the punch from the underclass team members.

The team played tireless defense and used their air-tight trap to defeat the likes of Fitchburg, St. Peter's, Doherty, Burncoat, and Holy Name in one of the state's toughest leagues. After their defeat against Southie, the team saluted their fans in the true spirit of St. John's athletics and walked off the court as State Division One runner-up, and one of the greatest teams in the proud history of St. John's basketball.

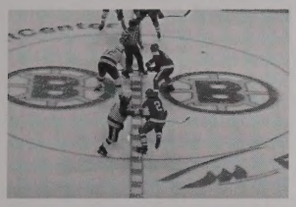
For the sixth consecutive year, plus the ninth time in ten years, head coach Brian Murphy lead the Pioneers into post-season play.



The pioneers received an unexpected but pleasant surprise from the new freshmen this year, led by left-wing Brian Collins and Matt McCarthy. Collins dented the twine more than anybody else on the Pioneer's squad.

But it was the senior class which gave coach Brian Murphy the leadership qualities he was looking for at the beginning of the season. Co-captains Casey Beaulac and Dave Brady led their teammates well. Also forwards Jason Haynes, Jeff McCarthy, and George Spencer turned up the intensity during the Pioneer's drive to the playoffs as they handled a large portion of the Pioneer's offensive scoring attack.

Senior Steve Nelson shared goaltending duties with Junior Ryan Neville, while seniors Tim Grady and Matt McCook protected their netminders with stealthy defense.

The team's effort as a whole ult mately yielded success for the Pioneers i the long run. After struggling through difficult regular season battling the like of national powerhouses B.C. High an Catholic Memorial, the team peaked whe it counted. Rated twenty first in the play off rankings, the team picked off highe seed after higher seed. The season cam to a dizzying climax when SJ knocked o top ranked Newton North in a two-da several overtime affair. And even thoug SJ met its match in the state semi-fina the hockey program once again proved i prowess.

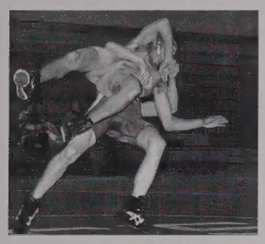
Pioneering Strength

wrestling

The Saint John's Wrestling team completed its regular season with an 8-8-1 record, a major improvement over its first season in the sport. Coaches Jerry Stanisz, Don Morin, and Ladd Lavallee guided this year's team to a fine second year plateau. Last year, the wrestlers were learning the basics of the sport; this year the coaches took the team to a whole new level. Saint John's achieved victories this year over Acton-Boxboro, Catholic Memorial, Leominster, Marlboro, Monty Tech, Shepherd Hill, Somerville, and Waltham. In the match against Brockton High, at the Saint John's gym, the team lost by a single point. In this meet and in the Lexington match the coaches felt that victory was possible, and with more experience, very probable.



Two very strong programs overpowered Saint John's in the regular season. The losses to number one ranked Chelmsford and powerful Lawrence Central Catholic demonstrate the amount of improvement needed for Saint John's to become a dominant team. Four captains-Brian Berquist, Nathan Robinson, Brian Duhamel, and Jeff Camuso provided leadership. Sophomore David Reidinius mad a significant contribution. Brian Duhamel fourth place finish at the Framingham Ho day Classic and his Success in the Hudson I vitational was an outstanding individu achievement.

The Saint John's wrestlers entered t Division I North Sectional Tournament Lowell High in the hope of qualifying for t State Tournament. In this meet on Februa 9th and 10th, the team had a strong showi by Redinius, who finished fouth, and Bri Duhamel and Shane Woodruff, who both to fifths. Six wrestlers qualified in each weig class to compete at the State Tournament Brockton High School in February. The dec cation, perseverance and success of the wre tlers was a model for the entire school.

A Season For the Record Books

outdoor track '96

If a person had to assign a theme o what a team accomplished in a sea- on, this theme would be "records". The rack team was undefeated (10-0) in the egular season with victories over Marlboro, Shrewsbury, South, Doherty, Burncoat, Milford, Wachusett, St. Bernard's, Holy Name, and St. Peter-Marian.

At the first big meet of the sea- on, the Central Mass Relays held at SJ, St. John's captured first place with a core of 112, a relay meet record. St. ohn's placed higher than 4th in every vent. The next large meet was the Cen- ral Mass Class Meet at Shrewsbury High School. Again, the team took first place with a score of 181 points, demol- shing the competition and the old record for points scored in the Class Meet. There where only two events where the team did not place, displaying their depth

The team's season culminated at the District Meet at Nashoba Regional, where the trackies elongated a 6 year winning streak as kings of Central Mass. Strong performances were put it by the 4x800 team of Captain Tom Gorsuch, Matt Anderson, Sean Murphy and Michael Kavanagh, which took first. Kavanagh and Murphy also took individual seconds in the mile and two mile respectively, and Marc Drappi added a second in the 800 meters. But the team was led by senior Johnny O'Mara and two surprise underclassmen.

O'Mara took the 2 mile as well as the Wallace award as the District's most outstanding athlete. Sophomores Mark Charron and Paul Cassassanta shocked a few opponents with victories in the 330 hurdles and long jump. O'Mara went on to take 4th in the State 2 mile.

Adding important points throughout the season wereJeff Cammusoand Scott Giangrande in the javelin, MichaelVicens and Joe Foley in the high jump, and Tim Moran in everything but distance running. Tony Small (200 meters) and Todd Eves (400 meters), who both set sophomore records in their events, look to join Charron and Cassassanta in leading the perennial powerhouse into another triple District Championship Spring in '97.

baseball '96

A long season and a long game came to an abrupt end when the Pioneer baseball team lost the District Finals to eventual State Champions Leominster High in a tough 12-inning, two day contest. Though the team's goal of a 4th straight District Title was not realized, this club must be considered among St. John's finest.

Led by Captains Tom Hall and Mike Quirk, the 1996 team proved to be a competitive group, winning many games in the late innings when a victory seemed doubtful. Late inning rallies produced wins over Milford, Leominster, New Bradford and Burncoat. Extra-inning games against St. Peter-Marian and BC High resulted in one-run wins. In the District Semi-Finals, Holy Name led 4-0 in the 7th, and in the Finals, Jim Marine's clutch two-out RBI single in the top of the 9th gave the Pioneers a chance.

The Seniors have left their mark. Pioneer Award winner Tom Hall was the team's inspirational leader, and one of the finest defensive catcher's in St. John's history. Mike Quirk produced one of the greatest seasons ever, batting .472 with 31 RBI and only one strikeout in 89 at bats, and compiling an 8-1 record with an ERA of 1.65. Mike had 5 hits in two games in the District Tournament, and pitched a no-hitter against Xaverian.

Jim Marine at 1st base and Mike Mercer at 2nd played in 37 wins in two years, and both played the game with enthusiasm and intensity. Jim's great glove and clutch hitting saved the team on many occasions. Mike was team leader in extra-base hits (11) and a defensive spark in the infield.

In the course of the long season, every Senior contributed. Jon Blanchette, Jon Emmerton, Mike Tiscione and Matt Tomiaolo all produced clutch hits. Brian Tonelli played almost flawlessly at 3rd base. John Casey led the pitching staff in appearances (12) and picked up a big win in the District Semi-Finals against Holy Name.

Junior Pitcher Josh Dada (5-1, 2.73) and Junior outfielder Andy Salmon (.400) joined Hall, Quirk, Marine, Mercer and Tonelli as CMC All-Stars. Tom Hall and Mike Quirk were Telegram and Gazette All-Stars, and Hall played for the All-State team against Connecticut at Fenway Park.

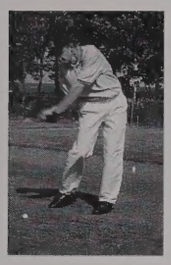
Men With Big Clubs

saint john's golf '96

The 1996 Varsity Golf Team began the season on a blazing course. Under the guidance of Head Coach Bill Prendiville, the squad won their first thirteen matches. Senior Kevin Cosgrove and junior ace Tom Giles, both captains, led the way. Veterans Jim Brosnan and Nick Marrone served the team well. And the arrival of several newcomers- senior Tom Prokop, juniors Tim Anger, Tony Luzzo, and Paresh 'Perch' Amin, and freshman Peter Jose- played a substantial role in the team's success.



The season had its share of trials as well. SJ lost senior George Spencer to illness late in the season. But the Pioneers rallied together and finished a strong regular season at 15-2. The team captured the Central Mass Conference Title and boasted two CMC All-Stars in Cosgrove and Giles. Giles was named a Telegram and Gazette All-Star as well.

The team entered the District Playoffs a bit of a dark horse. But SJ pulled off a third place finish at Holden Hills, in a match which took nearly ten hours to complete. Giles shot 76, good for fir place overall. The team performance at Distric qualified them for the Sta Championships. The State were played in early June Georgetown Country Clu where SJ finished a respec able sixth, edging out riv Wachusett. Giles' 77 place him third in the individu competition. --Tob Abraham '97

A Dynasty in the Making

1996 varsity tennis

The 1996 Varsity Tennis Team set out with one goal in mind: a District Championship. An influx of strong freshmen and the return of several of 95's starters provided hope for a successful season. Little did the Pioneers know how much they would dominate.

Freshman Surya Krishnan started at 1st singles, going undefeated throughout the regular season and the District playoffs. Senior Captains Matt Hebert and Kevin Mullins switched off at 2nd and 3rd singles, each with winning records. 1st doubles featured Spanish exchange student Jorge Garicano and Co-Captain Toby Abraham, both Juniors, who had an 11-0 regular season. SJ had arguably the state's best 2nd doubles team, Sophomore Tom Higdon and Freshman Mike Luchini. The duo finished15-0, including an impressive win in the State Semifinals.

After an explosive start the team closed out the regular season at 19-0 with a powerful 4-1 victory over two-time defending Central Mass Champs Algonquin.

Having cruised through early-round wins over Wachusett and Shrewsbury, the Pioneers were primed for the rematch with Algonquin in the District Finals. "We knew going in it would be a tough battle," said Mullins. A battle it was. The teams split in doubles and in second and third singles. The deciding point fell to first singles. Krishnan outsmarted senior Dan Klement, pulling away in the pressure-filled third set for a 7-6 (7-4), 2-6, 6-3 victory. On match point Krishnan turned to salute the crowd and was greeted by a mass of teammates as they flooded the court to celebrate the SJ's first District Championship since 1989.

The Pioneers fell short in the State Semifinals, losing 4-1 to Minnechaug. "This is a young team," says Head Coach Elaine Firnstein. "We'll only get better." --Tobin Abraham '98

Saint John's Spring Crew

The 1996 Spring Crew season was like a roller coaster of exhilarating wins and heart-breaking defeats. This tumultuous ride began with cuts, needed as a result of the shortage of equipment and coaches and also the huge influx of participants wanting to experience the rush of rowing. The coaches hoped that these cuts, used for the first time in Saint John's crew, would make this year's team one of the strongest and competitive in recent history.

The year started off with a big win for all the boats who rowed against Shrewsbury and East Lyme. In a surprising finish, third boat crossed the finish line second to fourth boat. The excitement faded quickly as the crew team had to square off against the prep school powerhouses of Andover and Exeter, two teams that routinely squash SJ. This year was a little different though. The first boat and third boat were beaten by both schools while second boat managed to save face by winning over Andover.

At the next important race of the season, the Quinsigamond Cup, Saint John's wanted to win the cup back from Simsbury who had ousted the team the year before. This year there were three cups up for grabs and SJ took two. Unfortunately, the First boat cup was lost ar is now resting in Brookline, who beat fir boat by less than a second in an agonizir defeat. At the next big up for the tear the New York State Championships, fir boat captured the championship and se ond boat won their race.

The biggest race of the season, th New England Championships, was the ra that SJ had prepared for all year. In th beginning of the day it looked good f Saint John's who placed well in all the heats with each boat making it to the grar finals. However in a disappointing fina the third boat placed fifth and second bo sixth. Still, there was a strong fourth pla finish by first boat to cap off four years hard work.

Their accomplishments are lauded and applauded; it is never unusual for St. John's students to be acclaimed as the Men of the Hour.

freshman semi-formal

Oh, what a night it was at the freshman semi-formal. The coolness that emanated from the Saint John's cafeteria on the night of March 22nd, was one for the record books. The free for all hootenanny began with a delectable meal, prepared by only the most skilled of caterers.

Following dinner, the Pioneers and their dates left their tables to get on the dance floor and start up the bacchanal. For three frenzied hours the freshman funkshuned uncontrollably with their dates.

As the groove deepened, so too did the viscosity of the semi, and soon the whole place was a wash of arms, legs and whatnot. Unfortunately, there were a few casualties as a result of all this hoopla; the variegated decorations for this king-sized bash were ripped down in the crazy crescendo. As the night came to a close, the frosh were sad to have to return to their droll and dreary lives outside the walls of the SJ cafeteria. However, it may be said that this year's frosh semi-formal kicked it mad style.

*They Came, They Ate, They Partied...*Not to be outdone by the record setting freshman semi the night before, the sophomore semi-formal proved once again that it's the class of 1998 that knows how to get on down. Kicking the evening off was a four-star buffet, provided by the dedicated Creedon & Company Caterers. The sophomores and their dates made a table by table dash for the food and drink dished out with the assistance of some very helpful freshmen. The lack of dinnertime chatter was due to the ferocious appetites of the Pioneer men, who ate both their own, and in many cases their dates' food. Following this gluttonous gorgefest, it was time to get on the dance floor and bust a move with the help of the D.J., who spun mad rythms and got the Pioneers straight into the groove. Says John Sorrenti of the sophomore semi, "The music was great, the food was even better, and the girls..." Indeed it can be said that this was truly one of the most enjoyable semis in recent memory.

p o t a t o p i c k e r s ?

On the night of May 11, 1996, Mechanics Hall was magically transformed into a jumping dance hall for the Saint John's Junior Prom. After going through the receiving line, the Pioneers and their dates had their pictures taken by professional photographer Francis Doyle and then sat down to a sumptuous buffet meal prepared by the gormet chefs at Creedon & Company Catering. After finishing their meals, the prom-goers got out on the dance floor and danced as the DJ kicked phat jams by artists like the Fugees, and even Milli Vanilli, a special treat brought in by the Junior class president, Bill Marino. And, to top it all off, the SJ students got mugs and T-Shirts and their dates got flowers and vases as wonderful mementos of that very special night.

After weeks of preparation, the tuxedos had been rented, the tickets had been paid for. The Pioneers' dates had poured months of allowance money into their dresses, their hair, their nails, and their golden April tans fresh from the fake 'n bake. The big night had arrived, along with all of the expectations that come with it. Portrayed by Hollywood as the biggest night of a high school career with such films as Pretty in Pink, Back to the Future, Buffy the Vampire Slayer, and Carrie, the pressure was on to make the night perfect. Would these Pioneers rise to the occasion and make this the capstone of their high school careers?

On April 12, 1996, one hundred and sixty seniors gathered at the Westborough Mariott for their final St. John's formal. This record-breaking turn out demonstrated the strong class unity and desire to "get down" to the brink of dawn. Their task: to arrive in style with a ravishing date, to smile for every flashing camera and to use polite etiquette during dinner. Once this was accomplished and the dance floor was opened, the soon-to-be graduates got the chance to display their "skills." Napkins became hats, water glasses became projectiles, and cummberbunds became lassoes. Despite several set backs in our lives, we came, we saw and we enjoyed our prom.

--David Foley

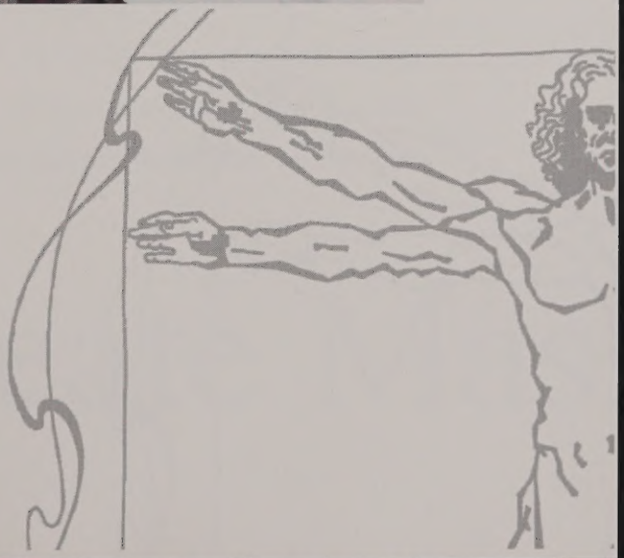
"...a good night had by all!"
--Andy Palumbo

"...a nice, warm memory. It was just fun and stuff."
--Nate Lalone

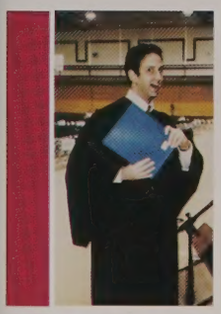
"...supposed to be at the Worcester Marriott."
--Jon Emmerton

(An explanation is needed here. See, Jon never heard the twenty or so announcements mentioning the fact that the Prom would be held at the Westborough Marriott and not in Worcester like past years. Unfortunately, Jon arrived at the actual site of the prom two hours after dinner was served and stayed for an hour before leaving to go to an after-prom party. It just goes to show that every time your homeroom teacher told you to quiet down for the announcements, it was for a good reason. Right, Jon?)

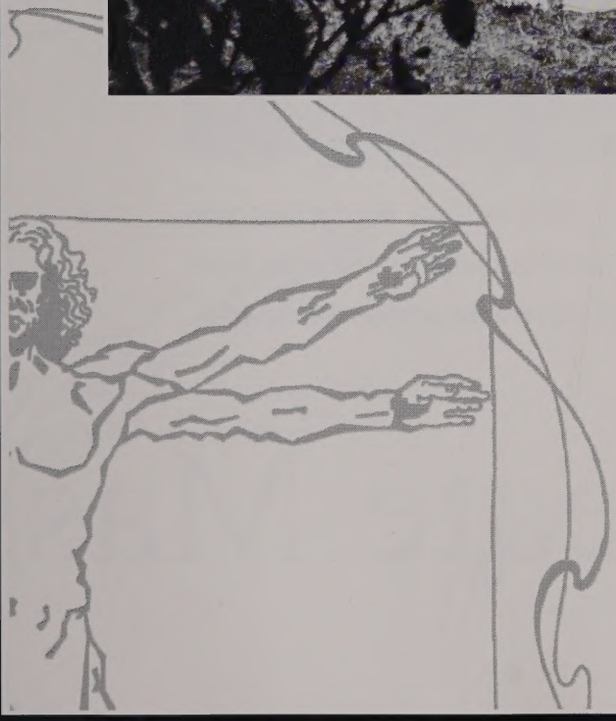
Senior Prom

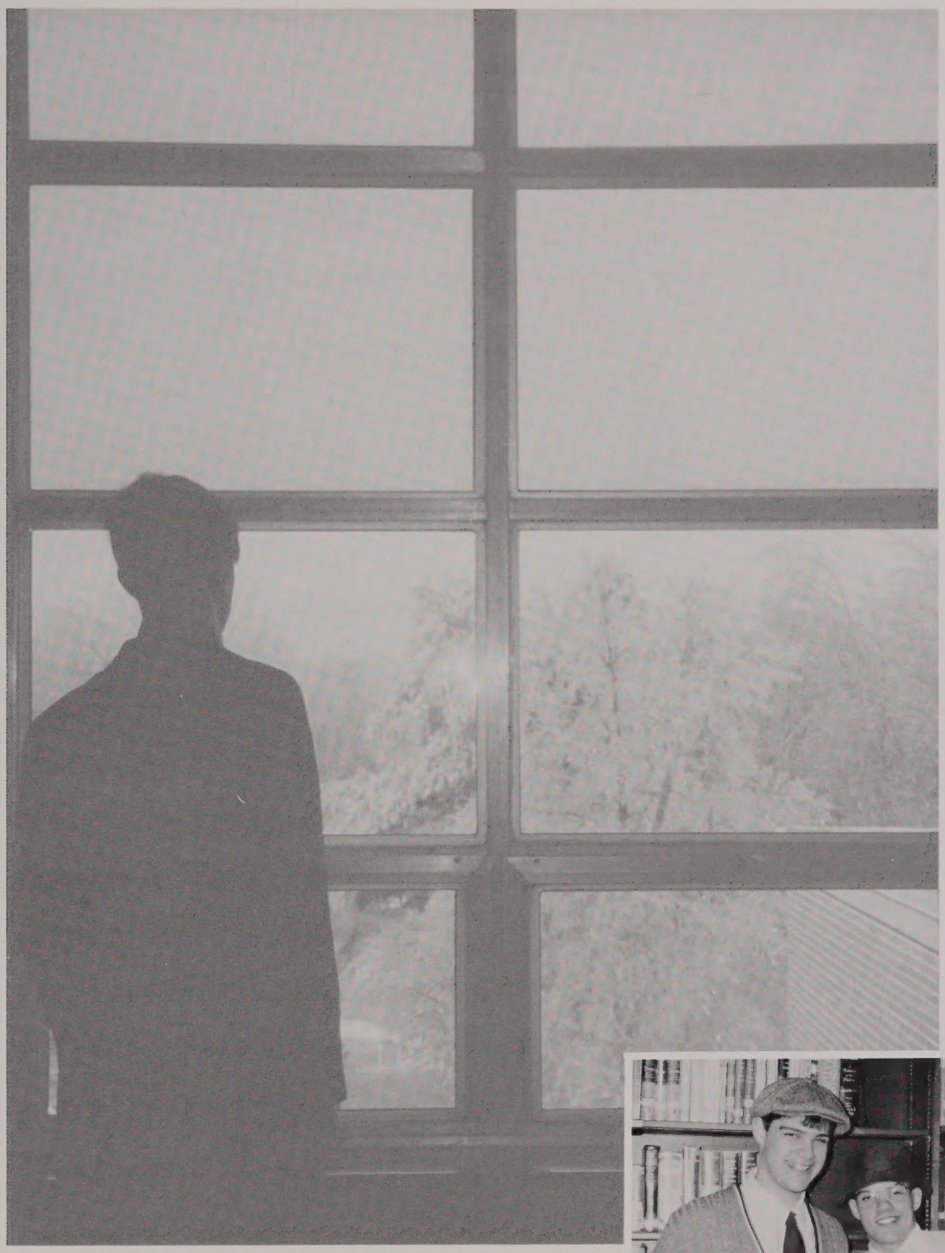


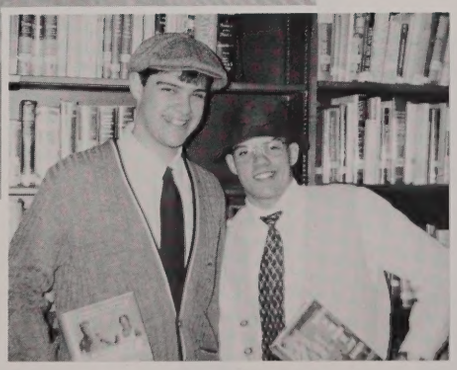
When we arrived at St. John's, everything was new. New school, new classmates, new dress code, new lack of girls. We all came from different towns, different backgrounds, but but there was one thing we all had in common, St. John's was brand new to all of us... Instead of being with kids from Worcester or Shrewsbury or West Boylston, we were with kids from Worcester and Shrewsbury and West Boylston as well as countless other towns and even other states. For many of us it was our first real taste of of the larger outside world and the first step in our high school development. The world consciousness we attained would seem to be cause for more anxiety, but instead as we spent time together in class, in athletics, clubs, the Spring Show, and whatever else a very special love developed within the class. It was the kind of love that Jesus speaks about in today's Gospel, the kind of love that serves as a binding force, and turns total strangers into friends. For me personally, athletics were the way in which I broke out of shell. I met a lot of my best friends through my involvement with the basketball team. It took me a while but eventually I evolved from the quiet kid who stayed in the background to the outgoing, entertaining, multi-dimensional, highly versatile, spiritual reflector you see before you today...Although we began as strangers, we eventually moved away from our small, isolated groups, and in doing so laid the foundation for the identity of the class of 1996.



Bacalaureate Mass

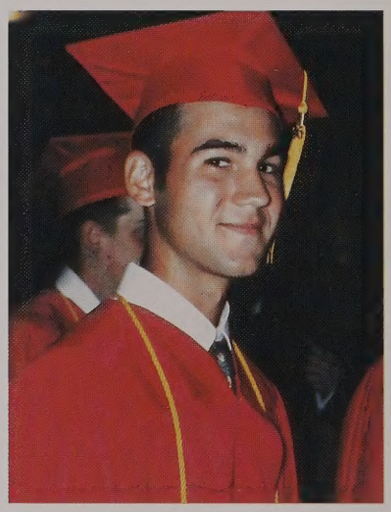


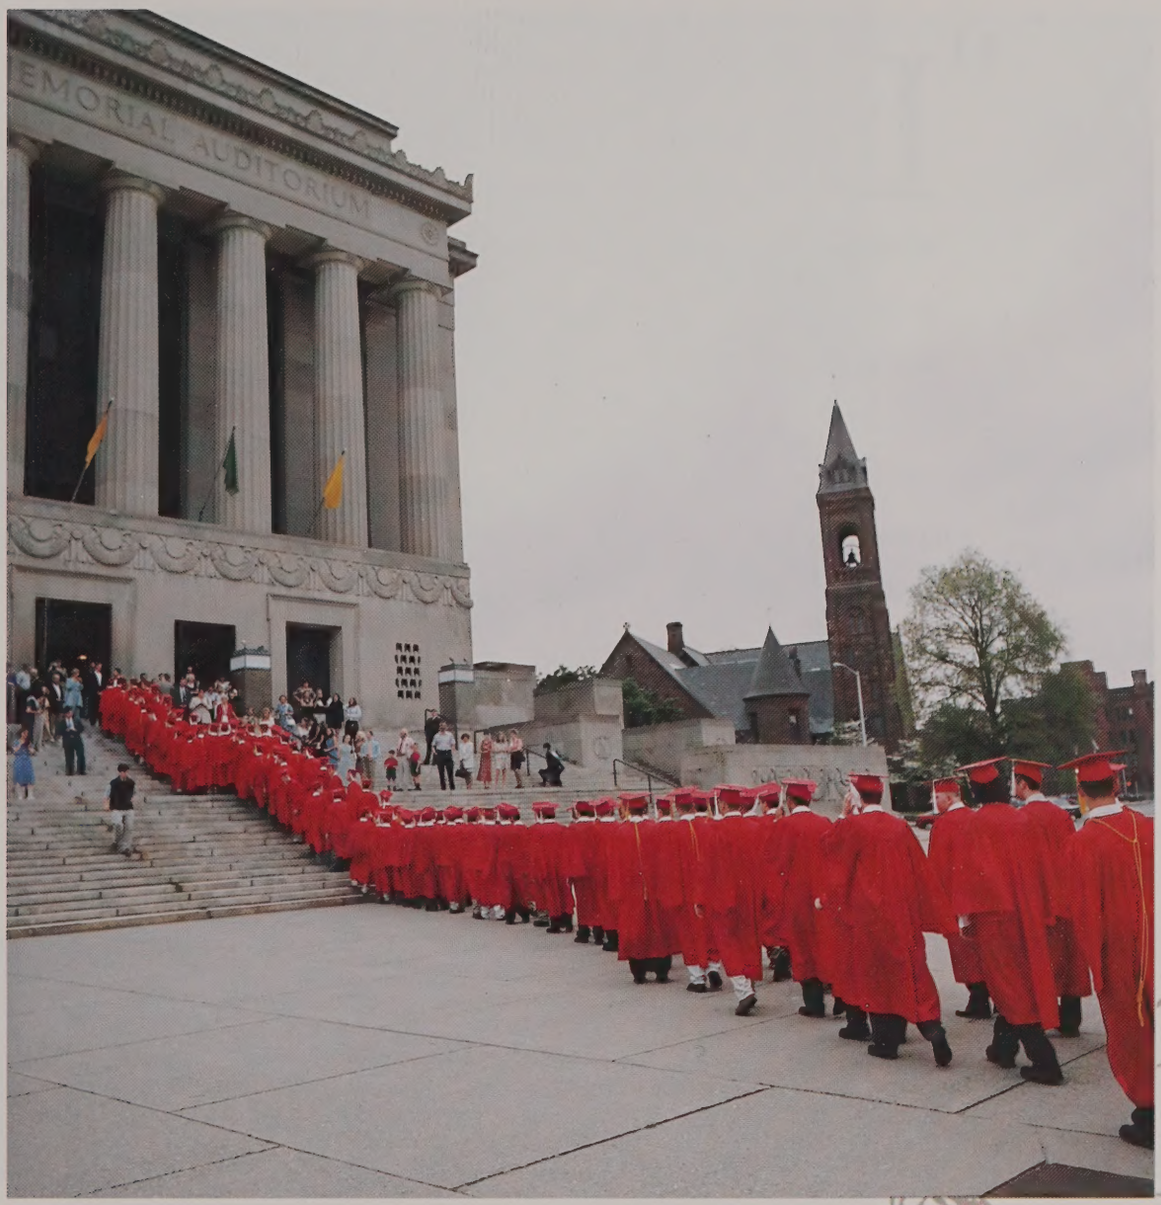




Graduation

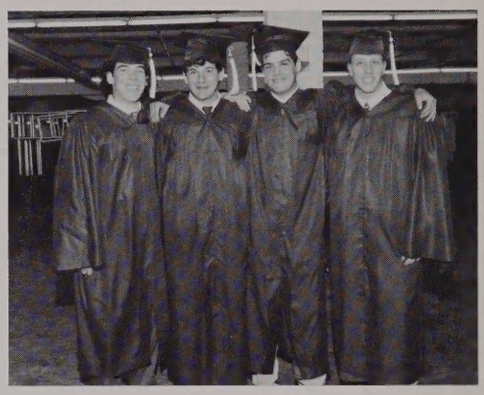
After four years, 23 dances, about 640 school days, 3840 classes, and count less meatball subs, the class of 1996 closed their high school career on Tuesday, May 21, 1996 at the Worcester Memorial Auditorium. United for one final time, the graduates took the stage in a sea of red. For most, it was a night to celebrate, yet at the same time, it was a time for reflection. Who was it that really had started that spirit day for the basketball team by calling the radio station? What were those ribs at lunch made of, and how come they tasted so good? Who were Brother God, Brother Day-Off, and Brother Mass-Electric and did they even exist? Did the school hold over money for the Ad-drive or what? How many tardies can one accumulate before summer school became a necessity? Gym? Or Phys. Ed?





EMORIAL AUDITORIUM

"Last year, the mantle of school leadership was entrusted to us; we haven't disappointed. I think that we surpassed everyone's expectations, and will be a tough act to follow. What better way to end four years of our lives than with that kind of legacy.



"Looking back at those four years, we see peaks and major successes; we also see four years that we spent together. We made a commitment to Saint John's, and I don't think that any of us feels that we made that commitment in vain.

"Looking ahead, we are on the doorstep of a new century, and a new millennia. John F. Kennedy wrote: "It's time for a new generation of leadership, for there is a new world to be won." I think that applies more to us today than at any time in the past. There are challenges and dangers ahead. Poverty, racism, corruption, hypocrisy- these all threaten the very fabric of our society. We have proven the value of commitment- our success and potential are testament to that fact. We need to translate that commitment into action for our society...

"This is our task. It won't be easy, but neither was marshaling the courage to go to Saint John's for the first time. Let's go forward firm in our commitment to others, asking the Lord's blessing and His help, but knowing that here on earth, God's work must truly be our own."

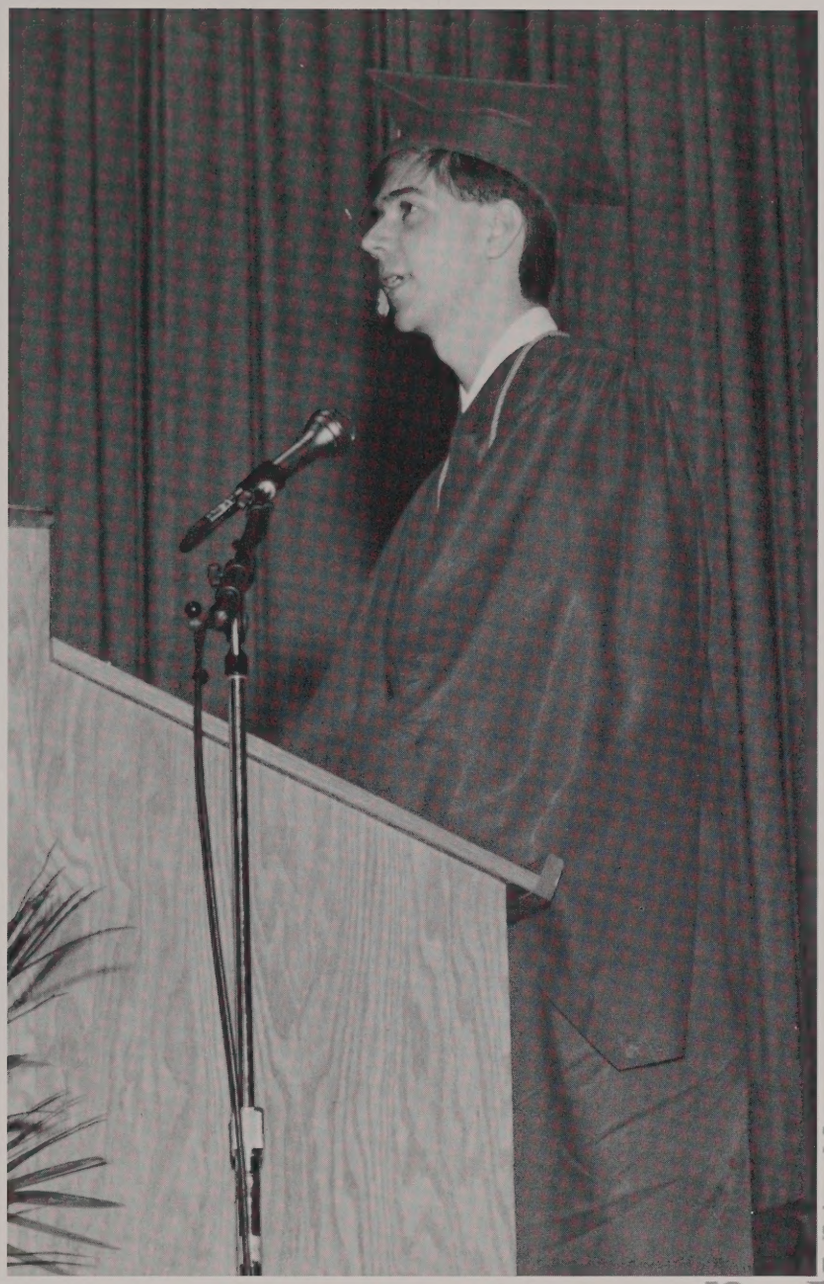
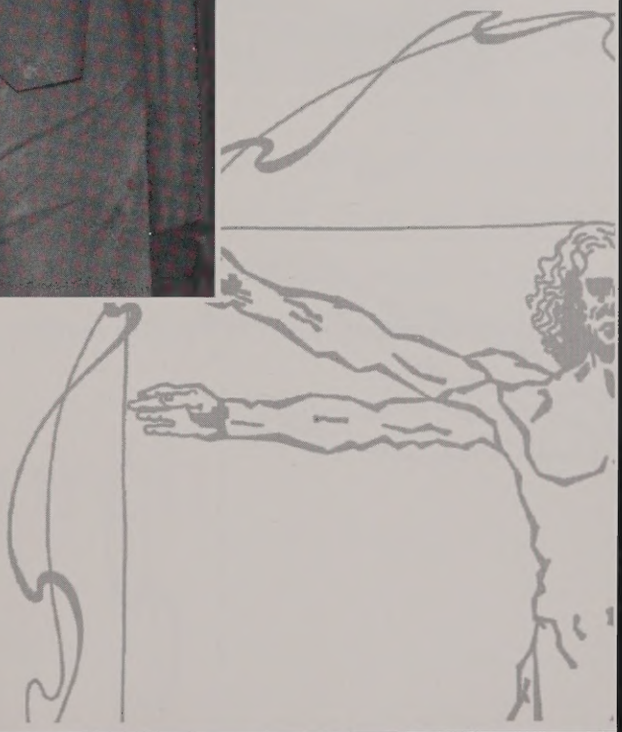
Commencement 1996





SAINT

"Moments ago I welcomed you to the graduation of the class of 1996, and now I'd like to thank you. First of all, the faculty. You are the ones that from Freshman year through Senior year and now graduation night have endowed our natural curiosity with experience and skill. We will achieve whatever we do in life in no small part from your contributions.

"Then to you, all of our friends, who know us better than anyone. You know what gets to us, and you know what makes us laugh. It is you we've cried with --or over-- but is also you who could always find a way to make those tears go away. Oh, it also is you who we've fought with, but who would always be there in the end for us.

"And most importantly to you, our parents...well, take a look behind me. I can't say it any better than what you see. We owe everything to you. For you are the ones that kept us going everyday. Whether it was nagging us to wake up early for school, or forcing us to sit down away from the T.V. to do our homework. Without you, who would remind us of who we are when the world seems to be crashing around us? Because, see, it is you who live to better our lives, and we thank you all for that." - Excerpt from welcoming address of S.A.C. President Daniel Roughan, graduation, May 2, 1996

what a '95-'96 wacky year

Election '96: Contenders for the presidency drop like flies in the heated race. Senator Phil Gramm, Ross Perot, Governor Pete Wilson, and Newt Gingrich all jump on their respective soapboxes and grab headlines, only to be left in the wake of Senator Bob Dole and President Bill Clinton. Clinton and Dole campaign mildly, while the American Public tries character assasination on both candidates: on Clinton for being the president, and on Dole for refering to himself in the third person. Meanwhile, MTV does a study finding that Gen X-ers are more interested in issues than character, so there is still hope for the future.

Foreign Affairs: Clinton commits U.S. forces to the plight in the Balkan States. Tensions mount between China and the U.S. over trade regulation and arm sales. Boris Yeltsin faces rebel opposition in his bid for President of the still-infant nation of Russia.

Entertainment: Alanis Morrisette and Hootie and the Blowfish rule the charts for most of the year, with crossover sensation the Fugees earning their share of weeks at number one. "Rent," the AIDS-themed Broadway musical wins critical acclaim in the theatre world. Mel Gibson's film "Braveheart" wins a surprise Oscar for Best Picture, but Best Actor and Best Actress awards go as predicted, going to Nicholas Cage ("Leaving Las Vegas") and Susan Sarandon ("Dead Man Walking"), respectively.

Sports: Michael Jordan continues the second stage of his basketball carreer in phenomonal style, easily reinstating his team as the NBA Champions. The world's best athletes train for the '96 Olympics in Atlanta, Georgia. America celebratres its home court advantage and Atlanta promises a "green" games. However, nothing can make up for Izzy the mascot.
